Course title: A Philosophy of Vision

Course convener: Sándor Sajó

Class time and place: Wednesday, 12 00-13 30, Múzeum krt. 6-8., lower level, room -137

Course type: Seminar

Course content: This course is going to be a discussion of the sense and significance of vision in experience in general. We shall consider vision both as a mental act and as what is seen and focus not only on what may be called its subjective and active aspect (the fact that I see) but also on its objective and passive aspect (the fact that I am seen). We shall try to question the alleged primacy of vision as opposed to the other senses.

Learning outcomes and methods:

Indicative Reading: The reading list includes Plato, Berkeley, Diderot, Fiedler, Merleau-Ponty, Sartre and others. It goes without saying, I suppose, that a seminar requires not only regular attendance but active participation in the discussions too.
